Ai-Ling Makewell

Healing Soul Wounds with Integral Homeopathy - A Path to Freedom

Ai-Ling Makewell has been a practising homeopath since 2000, with a background in counselling. The one driving force behind her work as a homeopath is a passion for healing and an intrinsic belief in the power of homeopathy to heal at a deep soul level. Her belief held all those years ago is now realized in Integral homeopathy. She came to the profession of homeopathy out of sheer necessity for health reasons. Studying homeopathy had not entered her mind before then but it seemed a natural progression on her personal healing journey. How little did she know, at the beginning of her studies, that homeopathy would be the one discipline that synthesised her life's learning, quest for knowledge and desire for deep soul healing.

Professionally, she has lectured and supervised the student clinic at the Endeavour College of Natural Medicine in Melbourne, Australia. She also taught the Basic Counselling Skill course at the ACT College of Naturopathy, Australia. Academically, she majored in Psychology, earning an Honours degree in Sociology, a Post Graduate Diploma in Counselling, and Diplomas in homeopathy (UK).

Torako Yui

Homeopathic approach to radiation and disaster

A leading person of homeopathy in Japan, Ms Yui has developed her own 'three dimensional method' which can deal with iatrogenic diseases such as atopic eczema, connective tissue diseases, developmental problems, and autism, and has enabled many intractable cases to be cured. Her cure rate for such diseases is quite high and has received attention from the world.

Just after the Great East Japan Earthquake which occurred last year, she set up the JPHMA support team to supply homeopathic remedies, food, water and donations and she also visited the affected area by herself. When she could not visit a place due to road closures she would send supporting messages to the people in the affected area. They said that they were so encouraged by them. Ms Yui has kept studying homeopathic approaches to radiation problems. On the exact same date, of last year's disaster in Japan, she gave out homeopathic remedies to radiation contaminated body and mind in Fukushima. She has also formulated a fermented solution for cleansing soil and growing healthy plants. She has been talking to people about the importance of food and agriculture for us to survive this coming new era.

Moreover, she started homeopathic natural farming in 2004, as she realised the many causes of diseases derived from food, as well as conventional drugs, that she was seeing in her clients. Natural farming does not rely on pesticide or fertilizer at all. In 2011, her activity was recognised by the local government, and she established NIPPON TOYOUKE natural farming Co. Ltd. She runs natural farms in Hokkaido and Shizuoka and is supplying vegetables and herbs without using any chemical substances.
